Editor's letter

You can definitely tell that we are in the mood for spring around here!

Vanessa takes us on another Wheel of the Year journey with Spring Equinox. In the Signs & Symbols series, we explore the meanings behind spring flowers. Additionally, on page 11, we provide a reminder of other important dates this month, including the Psychic Light Prize Draw, Mother's Day, Easter, and Daylight Savings Time.

For our celebrity feature this month, we delve into Mark Wahlberg's blockbuster - Arthur The King. We all love a good dog story! And speaking of animals, Sarah writes about Spirit Animals - do you know yours?

We also catch up with Reader Teya and showcase her fabulous testimonial on page 10. Chrystalte then offers insights into what our horoscopes will bring in March, expect a few twists and turns to keep us on our toes.

Lastly, we continue our Minor Arcana series by exploring the second half of Wands. This section covers cards 8 through to King. Will travel be on the cards for you?

Wheel of the Year: Spring Equinox

Written by Vanessa, PIN: 3900

As the Sun crosses the celestial equator on its way from South to North, we experience equal hours of daylight and darkness. The hours of daylight will continue to increase in duration until Summer Solstice in June. Falling on March 20th 2024, the energy of the Spring, or Vernal Equinox is one of transformational change. A time to act. To release the past, moving forwards with positivity and intent by using this intense burst of energy as everything moves fast towards the long days of Summer.

Time to Awaken

A time of awakening when everything in nature is coming to life and the days are becoming warmer, is encouraging us to throw off the comfort blankets and emerge into the light. Just as seeds are emerging and growing fast now, we need to awaken and get on with our projects for this season. No more quiet contemplation, for now is the time to make those plans happen in the real world. There's real excitement in the air!

Our ancestors would have looked directly to the natural world and to the emerging life around them. Living so closely with the seasons, this emerging light and hope alongside the obvious fertility in the birds and animals around them, led to the celebrations which honoured the growth and continuity of life. Eostre was the Germanic Goddess of Light, Fertility and Spring. With this time of year which we now celebrate as Easter come eggs! Painted and rolled down hills or made of delicious chocolate for sweet treats, they symbolise fertility, new life and growth.

Join in the dance

Look around now at the creatures of the natural world and join in the dance! Be like the Mad March Hare and rejoice in the abundant energy of the Spring Equinox. Lean against a tree and feel the rising of the life force within from deep within Mother Earth. Be as one, with the tree and the Earth. For our plans may take flight at this time of the year, but to be successful they must also remain grounded in reality.

A simple meditation to focus on renewal and self-healing will help you move into this Equinox and beyond feeling fresh and ready to grow to your highest potential.

- Take some time to settle your thoughts, drawing nice deep breaths and imagining each inward breath filling you with calm, fresh energy. As you breathe out, release tension and worry with each breath.

- Imagine that you are a seed, full of life. Plant this seed of yourself into the warm, moist soil of Mother Earth and watch as it gently begins to open. Feel your roots growing and reaching down into the deep Earth, drinking the water and absorbing the life-giving nutrients in the soil.

- Notice how your shoots emerge from the seed, sensing the light of the Sun and growing upwards until they unfold in the warm air. Your leaves gently unfold to soak up the Sun's rays. You grow strong, your roots anchoring you into the Earth as they draw up the nourishment from the ground. Your shoots grow more leaves, and you blossom and flourish.

Everything you need is given to you. For your growth, for your well-being. You are in radiant health!

Spring is here now, and the direction is forwards! I hope that each of you will find your own unique direction and grow something precious and new in your life to celebrate and honour the energies of this Spring Equinox.

The closest of bonds

Are you looking for something inspiring to watch at the cinema this spring? Well, look no further than the heart-warming story of Arthur The King, based on a book called Arthur: The Dog Who Crossed the Jungle to Find a Home, by Mikael Lindnord.

Plot

During a span of ten days and covering a distance of 435 miles, an unbreakable connection is formed between professional adventure racer Michael Light, portrayed by Mark Wahlberg, and a resilient street dog named Arthur. Light, driven by the desire for one final opportunity to triumph, manages to persuade a sponsor to support him and his team of athletes (Simu Liu, Nathalie Emmanuel, and Ali Suliman) in the Adventure Racing World Championship held in the Dominican Republic. As they are pushed beyond their physical limits during the race, Arthur redefines the very essence of victory, loyalty, and friendship for the entire team.

In real life

Lindnord, the subject of the film, spent a total of six years coexisting with Arthur. This unique bond between them began when Lindnord encountered the dog while participating in an adventure race held in Ecuador back in 2014. "Arthur became a part of our family right from when he entered our front door to the house. Arthur's beautiful soul touched many people and for us in the family he was the best family member you could dream about," the author adds. "He was like a guardian angel to our kids."

Production

Arthur The King is directed by Simon Cellan Jones. This was not his first-time directing Mark Wahlberg; they previously collaborated on The Family Plan, where they famously broke the cardinal rule of acting - never work with children! Ha! Now, they have broken the second rule by working with animals, and it seems like it was an adventurous and joyful experience for both parties involved. The film was written by Michael Brandt. In addition to the aforementioned stars, it also features Juliet Rylance, Paul Guilfoyle, and Bear Grylls (portraying himself).

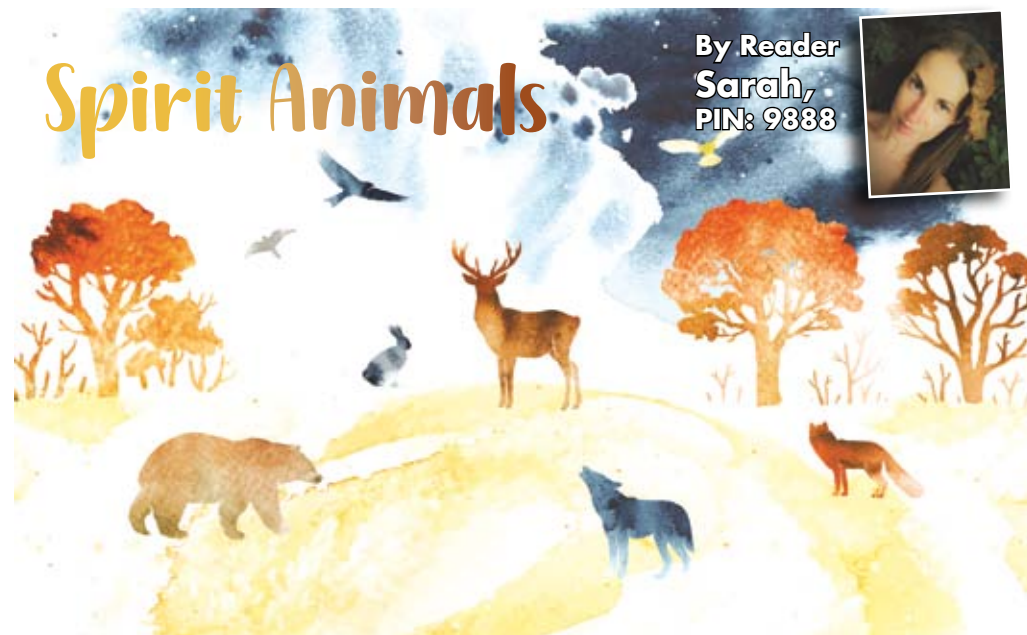

Trailer & Release

Film Image & trailer courtesy of Lionsgate: www.arthurtheking.movie/

It is thought the USA release is going to be the 15th March, moved up from the 22nd. The UK release date is likely to be the same - keep an eye on cinema listings.

You have probably heard the term spirit animal before as it is regularly used in spiritual practice. This concept originates from ancient shamanistic practice, where each person would have an individual spirit animal or animal guide. This was not an animal that was easy to find or bond with. Your personal spirit animal had to be found during trance like states where the person involved would journey deep into meditative practices. Over time and during these meditation journeys, the shaman would find, bond and work with their own unique spirit animal or animals. Most often a person would find a land or sea-based animal that they felt deeply connected to, however many shamans also bonded with a bird of some sort to aid their journeying into the spirit realm.

This may all sound quite deep and tricky at this point but do not worry! Whether you are a deep spiritual person with a lot of knowledge and experience under your belt or simply someone who wants to connect a bit deeper with their spiritual side, spirit animals can help guide you and give you a much deeper understanding of you as a person and your own identity.

Are you drawn to a certain animal?

Do you have an animal that you have always been drawn to? Maybe you find you have certain characteristics of a certain animal. Do you feel that you have always communicated better with a certain animal over others, or just have that feeling that you 'get' each other on a different level? This could in fact be your spirit animal! It is worth mentioning here that spirit animals and Familiars are often totally different things and soon I will be writing an article on Familiars and their role in spiritual practice. A Familiar is a physical animal that you are bonded with on a very deep level, an animal that you regularly interact with in the physical realm. A spirit animal is an animal or type of animal that you connect with simply on a deep spiritual level. Many people will never have physically met or interacted with their spirit animals (although if they have it would be a very emotional and spiritual experience).

Meditation may be the key!

There are various ways to find your spirit animal. Perhaps you have always known what this is. Maybe others around you have told you as they pick up on your similarities and mannerisms. If you feel you need to go on a journey to find yours, meditation is a fantastic way of doing this. Meditate and focus on which animal you find in your journey, or even which animal you feel that you have become or see through the eyes of. Dreams also play a key role in your interactions with your spirit animal. Do you regularly dream of a certain animal or find that you actually become the animal itself?

However, you find your animal and whatever animal it is, be sure to realise that this is a gift to you to help you on your life path. Learn from this guide and share skills with it, build a strong relationship with it and enjoy this new side to you and your spiritual practice.

Best wishes as always,

signs & symbols

Flowers are often associated with feminine energy and symbolise beauty, youthfulness, peace, and even perfection. During the Victorian Era, flowers gained significant meaning and sentiment and were even used to convey hidden messages. Apart from their aesthetic appeal, especially when in full bloom, flowers have been utilised for rituals and healing purposes throughout history.

In this article, we will delve into the meanings behind various plants and flowers commonly linked to springtime:

● HYACINTH

The god, Apollo's beloved was named Hyacinthus, she was accidentally killed by a discus. So the story goes - the flower that grew from his blood was named Hyacinth. Perhaps due to this tale, Christians have long associated hyacinths with "prudence."

● DAFFODIL

The humble daffodil is a symbol of spring for many people. It is cheerful and abundant, and it is also associated with resurrection and the period of Lent. Daffodils belong to the genus Narcissus. According to Greek legend, there was a youth who fell in love with his own reflection, and since then, this flower has been linked to self-love.

● TULIP

The tulip is, of course, associated with the Netherlands, where even today millions of tulips and tulip bulbs are harvested and exported across the world. It is an icon of spring and now comes in many shapes and a glorious array of colours. The tulip has long been connected with love and beauty but interestingly also with prosperity and wealth.

● ALPINE CYCLAMEN

The root of cyclamen was used in love potions! Often, the centre of the flower is red and is associated with passion. Some believe that the red spot symbolises the bleeding heart of Virgin Mary. Interestingly, the plant is also linked to farewells and resignations.

● PEONY

Peonies have been widely used in traditional medicine for centuries. In China, the Peony is regarded as the imperial flower and symbolises beauty and femininity in spring. In Japan, it is a popular choice for wedding flowers due to its association with marital bliss and fertility.

● CROCUS

As I'm sure you are aware, the crocus stamen is where we get saffron from. In addition to being used for cooking, saffron is also utilised to produce the yellow colour for dyeing cloth and clothing. By weight, saffron is one of the most expensive spices. The crocus plant/flower is associated with spring, fertility, cheerfulness, and gladness. Once upon a time, people wore garlands of crocuses in their hair as it was believed to ward off drunkenness!

● PRIMROSE

The primrose is one of the earliest flowering plants in spring. Some people call it the "prima rosa." Therefore, it is not surprising that it represents the first blush of love, youthfulness, and a sense of purity. It is also frequently used in healing remedies. For Celts, the primrose is traditionally considered the flower of fairies. Meanwhile, Nordic traditions link it to Freya - the goddess of love.

● PANSY

Folklore suggests that if you want to ensure the affection of your sweetheart, you should carry a pansy! The open-faced pansy is sometimes called heartsease. This flower has strong associations with love and affairs of the heart.

● LILY

The Lily is an unusual flower, often associated with both weddings and funerals. It is linked to weddings due to its symbolism of purity, peace, harmony, and the Virgin goddess as well as fertility. On the other hand, it is connected to funerals because of its ability to help alleviate grief.

● SNOWDROP

The snowdrop is also an early riser in spring, seemingly able to grow and flower under the harshest weather conditions. Therefore, it is no wonder that it heralds in spring and represents hope. In Christian Candlemas, the snowdrop is considered an emblem of the Virgin Mary. As a low-flowering plant, Victorians associated it with those who were buried. However, even though it may bloom in graveyards and other places, it is not seen as a sad flower but rather one that symbolises anticipation and expectation.

● IRIS

You may not realise that the iris is linked to the Greek goddess of the rainbow and represents the power of light and hope. You might recognise this flower from a fleur-de-lys design, where the three petals symbolise faith, wisdom, and valour. In China, this flower also carries a lovely sentiment of finding beauty in solitude.

Teya is a natural clairvoyant medium, channel and psychic healer. She was born and raised in South Africa and grew up in a spiritually rich and diverse community, albeit one with a challenging mix of ethnic cultures.

For as long as Teya can remember, she has carried a deep and intimate relationship with the natural and spirit world, beginning with learning the ancient art of African Divination; at the age of seven.

Teya has lived and trained extensively with traditional medicine men and women worldwide over the last 28 years. She has specialised in Shamanism, psychic development and holistic health.

For Teya, it has always been natural to connect to, feel, and receive the thoughts, voices, mental impressions and emotions of those who have crossed over into the spirit plane. These abilities enable Teya to communicate with your loved ones in spirit and convey any messages they wish to pass on to you.

In her readings, Teya offers empowering assistance through all stages of the death and dying passage, including crossing over, safely connecting with your loved ones, and understanding what happens on 'the other side'.

Teya will lovingly shed light upon any areas of blockage that may need healing or rebalancing. Her readings are known to be sensitive and insightful; and are delivered with warmth, humour and the utmost reverence.

Testimonial:

My first reading with Teya occurred in the early months of 2023. During that session, she offered an intricate analysis of the dynamics within my life and spoke to what was to come. At that time, her revelations seemed almost unbelievable, yet over the ensuing months, events unfolded as she had foretold. Fast forward to my second consultation with Teya, which took place in November 2023. Once more, her guidance was incredibly comprehensive and detailed. She facilitated a connection with a loved one in Spirit, provided profound insights into various aspects of my personal, professional and familial life, and empowered me with invaluable universal truths. Thank you, Teya!

Good luck!

10th March - Mother's Day

The tradition of Mothering Sunday dates back to the 16th century when it was originally a religious holiday. It served as a day for individuals to return to their "mother church," which referred to the main church in their local area. As time passed, this observance gradually transformed into a day dedicated to honouring mothers and has since become more secular in nature. This special occasion, devoted to appreciating mothers and mother figures, is celebrated on the fourth Sunday of Lent, occurring three weeks prior to Easter Sunday.

It is customary for children to pamper their mothers on this day by assuming household chores or preparing meals for them. Additionally, children often create handmade cards or gifts at school or home as tokens of affection for their mothers.

Do you have any special plans for this day?

31st March - Easter Sunday

In the UK, Easter is a widely celebrated holiday that holds religious significance for Christians. It commemorates the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead.

However, it has also become a secular celebration enjoyed by people of various backgrounds.

One of the most popular aspects of Easter is, of course, the tradition of giving and consuming chocolate eggs! Many households also purchase or engage in baking traditional Easter treats such as Easter biscuits and hot cross buns. These spiced sweet buns have a distinctive cross on top symbolizing Jesus' crucifixion.

In addition to these culinary delights, churches across the country hold special services and processions to mark this important religious occasion. People attend church on Good Friday to remember Jesus' crucifixion and then celebrate his resurrection on Easter Sunday with joyful hymns and prayers.

31st March - Daylight Savings Time

On March 31, 2024, Daylight Saving Time will take place. It typically starts on the last Sunday in March and ends on the last Sunday in October. During this time, we effectively lose an hour of sleep but gain more daylight in the evenings!

Today, we are continuing our Minor Arcana series. In February, we covered the Ace of Wands and cards 2 through 7. Now, we will delve into cards 8, 9, and 10, as well as the Page, Knight, Queen, and King cards.

EIGHT OF WANDS

Things are moving quickly when this card appears, perhaps events are unfolding at a pace for which you may not be prepared. Situations that were previously stagnant suddenly receive the green light. On the positive side, things become exciting and life feels brimming with possibilities and anticipation. However, some decisions may require swift action, and as you navigate through them, some will prove successful while others may not.

Additionally, travel could be in store; it might even be last-minute and feel somewhat chaotic. Nevertheless, keep in mind that embarking on new journeys and experiencing different countries and cultures can greatly enrich your life. Whatever this phase brings forth, now is the perfect opportunity to seize opportunities wholeheartedly - your determination and energy will take you far. Just bear in mind the saying "only fools rush in" as you proceed forward.

NINE OF WANDS

When the Nine of Wands appears, it's possible that you are already in a bit of a slump phase - and that is okay. No one in life expects things to be happening all the time. It's what we do with these down periods that counts. Now is a time to take stock and recharge your batteries so you are ready when the next expansion phase comes your way.

This card can also mean that you will enter a difficult time shortly, so preparing just in case is a good idea. This could mean focusing on your health, finances, relationships, etc., so that things are as strengthened as they can be. This card teaches us to draw on our inner reserves when we need them the most. You have more strength, purpose, and self-belief than perhaps you realise!

TEN OF WANDS

The Ten of Wands typically indicates that you are experiencing a sense of being overwhelmed or weighed down by a significant burden. It doesn't matter whether this burden is tangible or perceived; the outcome remains the same. This card prompts you to reflect on several questions: Is it necessary for life to be this challenging? Are you open to seeking assistance? Do you need to adjust your expectations?

Perhaps it's also time to assess whether you have taken on too many responsibilities, reached the limits of your capabilities, or if the issue lies in establishing appropriate boundaries - or lack thereof! The key takeaway from this card should be taking a step back and attempting to view your situation from a broader perspective. Hopefully, doing so will offer some much-needed clarity and objectivity regarding the next steps you should take. Ultimately, continuing along the same path as before will not lead you towards achieving what you desire.

In the first scenario, the Page of Wands relates to a situation where you are about to become busy! A new venture of some sort is on the horizon. The other cards in the spread should provide more indications. Possibilities such as a house purchase, a business deal, or a different career direction could all be on the cards. Additionally, engaging in some form of creative endeavour is also possible. You may find yourself needing to interact with others more than usual, but rest assured that you will enjoy this experience.

In the second scenario, The Page of Wands relates to a person, it signifies that someone is going to enter your life. Pages are typically young individuals who possess loyalty and trustworthiness. This person could be an old friend whom you haven't spoken with in a while, an employee at work, or even someone you meet during a business outing. Regardless of who they are, they will likely challenge you and bring forth plenty of interesting ideas for you to consider.

KNIGHT OF WANDS

Similar to the Page, a Knight card can represent a scenario or person. Words like travel, excitement, adventures, possibilities, and opportunities come to mind. However, it's important to be aware that the Knight may promise more than it can deliver. While you have every right to feel excited, be prepared for the fact that there is an element of risk involved and things could go either way.

As a person, the Knight is both charming and entertaining. They are unpredictable and sometimes eccentric, which only adds to their charisma. The Knight typically possesses a youthful quality. It may not necessarily be someone you know very well but interestingly enough; it could also indicate a person who is about to exit your life. Their ideas and suggestions for projects may captivate you; however, it's unlikely that the Knight will bring these concepts into reality.

QUEEN OF WANDS

The Queen represents someone you likely know, typically a mature woman. Alternatively, it can symbolise qualities that you aspire to develop within yourself. The Queen excels in maintaining balance and effortlessly manages both her career and family life. They possess unique individuality and radiate warmth, which naturally attracts people towards them. Their creativity is evident in their fashion choices, work environment, and homes. Queens have an innate curiosity about others, making them popular due to their genuine interest and enthusiasm. Consequently, they enjoy a wide circle of friends.

Queens are passionate individuals who exhibit loyalty and protectiveness towards their loved ones without being possessive. They fearlessly provide constructive criticism while remaining firm yet fair in their approach. Many confide in Queens due to their common sense, empathy, and problem-solving abilities - often seeking guidance during times of need.

KING OF WANDS

Just like the Queen, the King of Wands may represent someone you know or the qualities and personality traits that you desire to have. One of the things that people first notice about Kings is their sense of humour - it is what attracts people to them. Their characters are vibrant; they are fun, lively, and warm. Kings are social, as you might expect - their openness and ability to chat with anyone make them easy to approach.

Their energy and enthusiasm for life are infectious, and it is easy to be swept up by their magnetism.

Kings will flirt, but generally, they are happiest settled in a relationship; family life means everything to them. They are quite often viewed as parental figures by others, even if they do not have children—perhaps because they are seen as someone others can turn to in times of trouble. Career-wise, Kings usually have some sort of advisory role. They can usually see many sides of a story, making them great mediators.

Welcome to Free Spirit's in-depth
horoscopes for March 2024

Aries

It's time for tuning into life's cycles through watery areas like the sea, witnessing how life changes while certain patterns tend to repeat themselves. Just like being on or by the seashore, where we can see tidal changes and how they affect the state of the beach and sea, you may now see yourself through a related lens. The wistful energy of Pisces planets prompts to step back, knowing you don't have to be constantly in the thick of developments; you can let other people take over in certain areas.

Taurus

Venus flies through airy Aquarius through the first third of March, helping you negotiate your way through various situations. You may need to fix to someone else's plans, especially where internet or electrical issues are concerned, but come out on top through doing so! With Venus at odds with Uranus there is also the potential for rubbing a loved one or other important individual up the wrong way; but clashes should be temporary and some salve can be spread on any damaged area once Venus enters Pisces around the 11th.

Gemini

The first half of the month has more pace than the second, which is a lot to do with Mercury starting to slow its course to the extent that it will eventually look as though it's travelling backwards against the path of other planets once we hit April. It could be your signal, therefore, to get anything vital wrapped up as soon as possible. And then start to recognise where a little more attention will be needed, reaching for the famous fine-toothed comb to help fully sort a sticky tangle!

Libra

There's a clear division of focuses before and after March 11th when Venus enters Pisces – a sign associated with fluctuations and fluidity. From that point on you can bend the rules and operate at a more relaxed pace most of the time. But meanwhile be prepared to toe the line and do what's asked. Similarly, others may not be free to assist as much as would be ideal for a while. Remember, any tough patch will be temporary! Favourable Jupiter and Uranus connections across the 24th-28th open fabulous new opportunities.

Scorpio

It's the other planets now linking with Pluto that indicate some moving-and-shaking of your world, or at least as much as the outermost planet itself. Pluto may have been apparently relegated to dwarf planet status but that makes no difference to its symbolic significance as a reflection of deep change and healing. Be prepared to put more of this into words, and/or be influenced more by sounds, from the 10th when Mercury aligns with Pluto. Light can be shone on a complex issue around the 21st, bringing the heart warmth.

Sagittarius

March's celestial offerings look decidedly easier for the archers of the zodiac! It's much to do with Jupiter' easier alignments, especially with the Sun in the first half of the month, and with Venus in the second. Venus picks up the baton from the Sun in Pisces soon after mid-month, which means that you can push into slightly unusual territory and meet a good response. You may also have the opportunity to escape from constrictive or frustrating situations; a change of scene, routine or company could make all the difference.

Cancer

The Pisces New Moon on March 10th inhabits a fellow water sign, placing you in your element, among like-minds. Make the most of harmonious connections with people and places through the first half of the month. Something is different than it may seem around the lunar eclipse on the 25th. This can produce an intense experience that feels out of the ordinary. You may undergo a sudden revelation and/or decide to turn a blind eye to a certain situation. Your strong suit lies in your willingness to go with the flow!

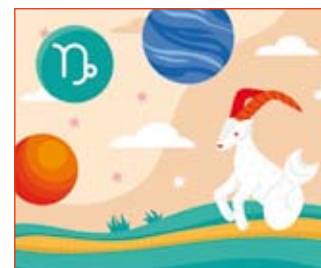

Leo

The Sun is favourably linked with Jupiter, Uranus and Pluto across March 1st, 9th and 21st, which makes each one of those dates a time of special opportunity. With Jupiter the theme is growth and expansion, urging you to step outside your comfort zone. Taking that courageous step could bring some useful and interesting developments, with solutions and openings you'd likely not have otherwise found. Pluto may herald an intense interaction, but also offering needed closure on a long-standing issue. Much can be achieved if you trust your heartfelt instincts!

Virgo

March is effectively a month of two halves, with Mercury changing signs around the 10th from Pisces to Aries – which likely means getting much more focussed on tasks and projects. It is worth revving up a few gears to manage what you can fit in before what looks to be a messier time in April. As Mercury will be slowing to a retrograde path then, you will have a chance to catch up on an old project too. But it might feel good to get some loose ends tied up first.

Capricorn

Around March 21st Saturn and Venus align in the same degree of Pisces, which brings a charming, attractive energy into your midst. This may of course represent someone around you, but could equally be to do with simply feeling more in the mood for socialising. For some Capricorns it will relate to engaging with an appealing creative project that taps into a sense of taste, harmony and beauty. In the meantime, if you feel you're coasting, remember that it can help enormously to sometimes conserve energy for when really needed!

Aquarius

Uranus squaring Venus around March 3rd indicates disruptions and possible disagreements, which may nonetheless help to clear the air and create movement on a project. Take care around the 9th, when Uranus has that same pattern with fiery Mars, as accidents can happen easily under such alignments, due to rushing, lack of preparation, or simply acting without considering the consequences. A gentler link with Venus in Pisces on the 28th can help to smooth out any rough edges, especially where you're willing to be more flexible over a particular issue!

Pisces

Neptune comes into its own this month, with powerful place alignments with Mercury and the Sun. This means your thoughts move onto a higher plane, or give you respite from mundanity or pain – or all of those! And with no particular rhyme intended, but the connections with poetry, music and other art forms are stronger with your sign in the communicative and creative spotlights that those planets represent. Let invisible yet tangible connections unfold some good vibes between you and other people, plus places and situations! You won't regret it.
